8 ways to think about HighQ

Instead of to-dos, think automated processes

Automated processes allow legal organizations to break free from the chains of repetitive tasks, advancing repeatable work with ease. Based on the workflows legal professionals encounter daily, automated processes streamline the practice of law – without a programmer.

Instead of scrambling for answers, think always-on data

Get out ahead of the ask. Thomson Reuters® HighQ makes it easy to create and automate the type of white-glove service and reporting that clients crave, freeing your organization up to get back to the matter at hand.

Instead of custom built, think customized

With easy-to-customize templates, HighQ lets you build on the efficiencies and experience of your organization. Your best workers create best practices that scale across the business with grace.

Instead of file sharing, think document collaboration

True collaboration allows for co-authoring and sharing, while maintaining the proper balance of access and security. Everyone is on the same page and version control is easily managed.

Instead of databases, think iSheets

Ever use a spreadsheet? Then you can handle HighQ iSheets. They're the foundation for workflow and document automation, data visualization, reporting, and more.

Instead of "making it work," think "working together"

Working in HighQ means working. Not moving, sending, switching, reformatting, or transcribing.
With integrated tools like Thomson Reuters® Contract Express, attorneys can stop moving from one app to another, and start moving their caseload towards a resolution.

Instead of point solutions, think integrated platforms

With integrated platforms, your work becomes more productive and efficient. What's more, with consistency across systems, you'll unlock new insights about your processes and performance.

Instead of "this sounds complicated," think "I've got this"

HighQ is a powerful solution that promotes productivity and collaboration across the whole organization. It's an out-of-the-box, no-code-required tool that is surprisingly easy to use. HighQ will propel your work forward and elevate the quality of your legal services. Take a free demo to see if HighQ is the right solution, no matter where you work.
