FAQ – Deployment Options

How can Contract Express be deployed?

The solution is available on premise, or on the cloud as a privately hosted or multi-tenant solution.

What flavours of Contract Express are available?

Contract Express is available as a standalone server application, or deployed as Contract Express for SharePoint, or Contract Express for Salesforce.

What hosting provider can I use for a cloud deployment?

If Thomson Reuters is managing the hosting, our primary hosting provider is Azure.

The client can use other hosting providers if not looking to take advantage of a TR managed subscription.

What are the server requirements for setting up my instance of Contract Express?

The hardware and software pre-requisites are published specific to the version and deployment. Once the client is engaged and under a confidentiality agreement contact Services to be provided a copy of the relevant manual.- needs rewording

How can I draw data into the system?

There is out of the box availability to draw data from SharePoint lists, SQL tables and OData sources.

Can I integrate with X?

Contract Express has a rich and well documented API based upon the modern REST standard. This allows for the client to develop integrations with a wide variety of enterprise software. We can share the API manual if the client/prospect is under NDA. Notably while we offer the API to clients, we do not provide out of the box connectors, these must be developed. We cannot quote on costs for this, it would be most likely developed by an independent contractor and vary on the size of the project.

Can I use Contract Express with a Mac?

Questionnaires can be run on any supported browser on any platform however to create content a Windows PC running Office 2007 or later is required.
